You're forgetting what happens if there's no direct health downsides. Faster internet, more social media datamining, more facebook dopamine addiction, more online gambling, more degenerate porn, more BIDEOGAMES.

Please read these carefully, especially the ones about suicide rates among electrical workers: they talk about Low frequency EMFs, which is the polar opposite of 5G, which uses high frequencies. But thanks for the links, im gonna read into it.
Also, even if there were no public health concerns, 5G will usher in a new age of IoT which will allow for MASSIVE data gathering as well as surveillance of individuals. I work in IT and i'm honestly more scared about this aspect than the radiation. I imagine it's gonna be similar to the effects the proliferation of smart phones had, but way, way worse, especially considering the state of modern Data Science.

There is always a downside but if yo uare healthy it will not hit you as hard.

Your body is taking extra strain which it should not have.
Enough that tress and small animals die.

The range of 5G is 1000 fee, that is why they need millions of them.

Devil in the details. You were here in the last thread.

5G is not a unique waveform. It is just like all harmful EMFs but amplified x1000.

5G on a router means 5GHZ. 5G on a tower means 5th Generation. 5G towers are at around 60GHZ on average. 5GHZ is still WAY outside the safety range. Get a guard for your router and use an ethernet cable for internet.

Almost all of these studies are either scientifically shaky at best, by use of subjective reporting of symptoms, analysis of different types of radiation than what actually makes up 5G, or at least one that LITERALLY found that exposure caused no significant difference in detrimental effects between the exposed group and the control group.

Multiple studies in your posts refer to the effects of Extremely Low Frequency EMF, which depending on the source is defined as 1-300 Hz or 1-3000 Hz. 5G operates in ranges from 600 MHz on the low end too 39 GHz on the high end, or in other words, 600,000,000 Hz to 39,000,000,000. So not at all comparable

See https://web.archive.org/save/https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3006375/pdf/1476-069X-9-75.pdf
> Conclusions:We observed few statistically significant results which are not consistent over the two time points.Furthermore, when the 10% of the participants with the highest exposure are taken into consideration thesignificant results of the main analysis could not be confirmed. Based on the pattern of these results, we assumethat the few observed significant associations are not causal but rather occurred by chance.
